GREYSCALE

3 - 20 JULY 2019

We make a greyscale to see the range of light available, rinsing out vivid hues and working primarily with light and contrast. In a similar way, winter brings mist and overcast skies, desaturating our vision. Greyscale is an Egg & Dart winter exhibition of diverse restraint. The show nurtures a muted palette, cloaks us warmly and drops us into the cloud cover.

Four of the artists in Greyscale are actually vivid colourists (Adamik, Draper, Fell-Fracasso and Gresswell). The other three are known for subtle shifts in hue (Makino, Mark, Treloar).

Gabrielle Adamik has recently shown work at the Auckland Art Fair and Sydney Contemporary Art Fair. Lynda Draper has just been awarded the Sid Myer Fund Australian Ceramic Prize, following a sell-out show in Paris, France. Lynda's works are featured in Vitamin C: New Perspectives in Contemporary Art, Clay and Ceramics (Phaidon Press), which offers a global survey of artistic production in the medium. Aaron Fell-Fracasso has just returned from showing at the Auckland Art Fair followed by a residency at Umbi gumbi on the NSW south coast. Louise Gresswell is a Melbourne artist, a recent finalist in the Ravenswood Prize and the Churchie National Art Prize. She is represented by Gallery 9 in Sydney. Koji Makino is an artist working with photography who has been a finalist in a number of significant competitions. The Distant Shore is his current exhibition (with collaborator Kurt Sorensen) at Peacock Gallery, Auburn. India Mark's work is coveted for its exquisite selectivity and luminous presence. She has been a 2016 and 2018 Archibald finalist, and a 2017 and 2018 finalist in the Brett Whiteley Travelling Art Scholarship. Teo Treloar has just featured in The National at the Museum of Contemporary Art, Sydney. He is a lecturer at the University of Wollongong. Teo Treloar is represented by Andrew Baker Art Dealer.
